Hi everyone, Newbie here who has been doing a lot of reading of your very helpful posts recently. I've bought a used LDV Maxus, its a 2.5 CDi 95psi, when i bought it the guy explained that it needed new glow plugs, I wasn't really put off by this as it was a cheap job on a cheap van which i was confident that i could do the job myself.

The LDV is by no means the only brand to suffer vague or phantom shifting with this system and a body-computer re-set may be required. The fault has nothing to do with you leaving it in 4H while it was parked for a few days. It's also very unlikely to be an actual mechanical problem with the transmission.

I'm on the verge of buying a 2007 Maxus (2.5 CDI 120 psi engine) with 100,000 miles on the clock, it's former MOD vehicle (no service history for the first 90,000 miles, but I hear the MOD take good care of their vehicles). The last owner converted it to a lovely camper van, and hasn't had any trouble or costs for the last 2 years/10,000 miles.
